PREFACE

Since we are the product of our environment plus our inheritance, we should be glad to know something about our ancestors. Our purpose in making these historical studies of our kinsfolk is that the data may be recorded and available for those who may be interested. In a sense of deepest humility we have labored diligently to produce a collection of genealogical information that may be of some benefit. We hope that in some small way our purpose has been fulfilled.

We are proud of the type of citizens of which these families are made up. May they continue to strive to be good and worthwhile citizens in their respective communities, states, and the nation.

We appreciate the help of those who, in any way, assisted in the task of compiling these family histories. It would have been impossible without that help. Especially are we grateful to Dr. Marshall Wingfield and Mr. A. E. Akers for permission to quote from their books which are listed in the bibliography, and to Mrs. Henry B. Brackin for information furnished by her. Also, Mrs. C. P. Greene has been a great help in the preparation of the Gresham genealogy, for which we are very appreciative. To everyone we say, "Thank you."

THE AKERS FAMILY

The surname AKERS is probably of English origin. The early emigrants to America by that name were of British ancestry. The name was probably derived from Old English; aker, or Middle English, aecer, meaning an acre field. If this is true, it probably was taken because farming was the occupation of the first bearer of the name.

The use of hereditary surnames in England was begun about the year 1000. Many surnames were introduced from Normandy, however, there are records of Saxon surnames prior to the Norman Conquest. The Domesday, or Doomsday, Book, 1086, a census record of England, showed surnames to be in use at that time. By the end of the twelfth century the use of surnames had become common in England. But it was not until after Edward V became king, 1483, that a law was enacted to compel the adoption of surnames: "They shall take unto them a Surname, either of some Town, or some Colour, as Blacke or Brown, or some Art or Science, as Smyth or Carpenter, or some Office, as Cooke or Butler."

The primary purpose of this genealogy of the Akers family is to trace the descendants of William and Polly (Blackburn) Akers through their son, John Akers and his wife, Sarah (Brown). The information which is included in the Akers Family as numbers 1 through 20 is given only that it may be of some use to someone, and we do not make any positive claim that it is connected with our early ancestors. This is left for those who desire to make a more thorough research into the subject.

The coat of arms of the ancient English family Akers is as follows:

> ARMS—Gules, three escallops, or.
> CREST—An arm, vested, bendy, azure and or, holding a pennon, bendy, of the same and or, charged with a Sarcen's head proper, between eight crosses-crosslet, counterchanged.
> MOTTO—Je vive en esperance. (Burke's—History of the Landed Gentry—of England, Scotland, and Ireland, for 1852)

1. WILLIAM AKERS

William Akers settled in West Jersey before 1698. It was at this time that he and others were granted 100 acres of land by the West Jersey Company for a church, cemetery, and schoolhouse in Maiden township, above the falls of the Delaware:

Child:

2. Simon. Probably his son.

2. SIMON AKERS

Simon Akers, married unknown. Died intestate in Hunterdon County, New Jersey in 1722. Simon Akers (believed to be his son) was administrator of his estate.

Children:

3. Simon, married in Edgemont Township, Chester County, Pa. in 1715. Perhaps administrator of his father's estate, 1722.
4. Robert, b. 1703 in N. J., m. Sarah——, b. Mar. 13, 1706.
5. John, m. Martha ——. Bought land in Hunterdon County, N. J. Children: William, Thomas, Obediah, Susannah, Jonathan, and Elsie.

3. SIMON AKERS

Simon Akers, who m. in Edgemont Township, Chester County, Pa., is believed to be the one who was living in the Roanoke Settlement, Va. in 1742. His wife's name was Mary. The land in this area of Virginia was widely advertised in Chester and Lancaster Counties, Pa. and many settlers went from these Pennsylvania counties. It is believed that he moved from Chester County, Pa., about 1740.

He and his son, William, were listed as members of Company 8, Augusta County, Virginia Militia in 1742 with George Robinson as Captain.

His homestead was 240 acres of land in the fork of Tinker Creek and Roanoke River. This is near and east of the present town of Roanoke, Virginia. Although he lived and reared his family on this land, the grant was not recorded until after his death. The land grant records show this: March 10, 1756, Simon Akers, 240 acres in fork of Tinker Creek and Goose Creek (Roanoke River).

Simon Akers and George Robinson were executors in the will of Daniel Monohan, who lived across Tinker Creek from Akers. When Daniel Monohan died, he left an only child, Mary Monohan, born December 8, 1742. He left his property for the maintenance and education of his child. She was cared for one year by Simon Akers for which he received from the estate 4 pounds, 7 shillings, 6 pence on June 18, 1744. Will Book No. 1 shows sale bill of Daniel Monohan's estate, Dec.

13, 1744. Purchasers, viz: William Akers to a hat, 1 shilling, 1 pence; Mary Akers to flax, 5 shillings; 6 pence; Mary Akers, to yarn, 4 shillings, 2 pence; Simon Akers, to a Rugg & blankett, 10 shillings, 10 pence; Simon Akers, to a piece of Flanen, 3 shillings, 9 pence; and others.

In 1745 the Court at Orange named Simon Akers as Constable in Capt. George Robinson's Company, and also, ordered George Robinson and Simon Akers to view a road across the mountains. He was appointed road overseer, May 12, 1746, in Augusta County, Va.

Simon Akers died in early part of 1749. The record of his will is found in Will Book No. 1 as follows: March 9, 1748. Simon Akers' will—Wife, Mary Akers; sons, William and Thomas, and their younger brother and sister, Uriah Akers and Ruth Akers. Executors, wife, Mary, and son, William. Teste: Wm. Armstrong, Susanna Armstrong, Nicholas Haile. Presented, May 17, 1749 by Mary and William Akers. Proved by Wm. and Susanna Armstrong, and lie for further proof. On the next page: May 17, 1749—Mary and William Akers' bond as above with surety John Mills. Then later the following: Dec. 27, 1749, Simon Akers' appraisement by Erwin Patterson, John Mason, and Joseph Robinson. He had horses, cattle, carpenter tools, and other things to the amount of 59 pounds, 19 shillings, 6 pence at the time of his death.

Children:

6. William, b. 1730, d. 1810, m. Elizabeth Martye (or Marte)
7. Thomas, b. 1733, d. 1815, m. Mary——. On Nov. 24, 1753 in Augusta County, Va. William Akers, Thomas Akers, and Uriah Akers, with others, were ordered to work road. On Feb. 5, 1755 Thomas Akers bought 82 acres of land on the Roanoke River. He bought 245 acres of land on Wolf Creek from Baptist Armstrong, June 11, 1763. In 1770 Botetourt County, Va. Court appointed him and others to view a road from Long Lick to Bedford County Line.
8. Uriah. On Mar. 9, 1748, William, Thomas, and Uriah Akers were added to list of tithables. On Feb. 3, 1767, Uriah Akers purchased 134 acres of land on the Roanoke. Records show him as Constable in Augusta County, Va. courts, 1762 and 1766. He served as juror, Mar. 10 and 11, 1773, in Augusta

County. He was granted land in Montgomery County, Va., Mar. 8, 1780, for serving in the American Revolution.

9. Ruth. Unknown.

6. WILLIAM AKERS

William Akers, b. 1730, d. 1810, son of Simon and Mary Akers, m. Elizabeth Martye (or Marte) of Pennsylvania Dutch extraction and whose parents probably came from Germany. He was in Augusta County, Va., in January 1750 when he made appraisement of Wm. Alexander's estate. In 1755, Wm. Akers was reported by Sheriff of Augusta County to be in Bedford County, Va. He was in that part of Bedford County which became Campbell County in 1782. On Sept. 27, 1782, William Akers of Campbell County made bill of sale to James Mason of Botetourt County, Va.

William Akers furnished supplies to the Continental Army during the Revolutionary War for which he received certificate for payment by the County Court of Campbell County, Va., Mar. 7, 1782 and April 4, 1783.

The Simon Akers land in the fork of Tinker Creek and the Roanoke River was sold to Nathaniel Evans in 1773 by William Akers and Elizabeth, his wife, of Bedford, and Thomas Akers and Mary, his wife, of Botetourt for 225 pounds.

He is buried in the second burial ground of Old Concord Presbyterian Church.

Children:

10. Sarah m. Alexander Steele. Farmer, Appomattox County, Va.

19. Anne, m. Matt Peticrew. Farmer, Campbell County, Va.
20. William, m. Mar. 17, 1798 in Campbell County, Va., Polly Hardway, dau. of Charles Hardway.

21. WILLIAM AKERS

William Akers of Franklin County, Virginia, d. 1833, m. Polly Blackburn. According to the U. S. Census of 1830 he was age 90-100 and his wife 80-90 years. This shows that he was born during the 1730s. It is possible that he was the son of Robert Akers (No. 4) of New Jersey and went to Buckingham County, Va., where he resided before going to Franklin County, Va. We have no proof of this and we only give it as an indicated possibility so that it may be used as a clue by some interested genealogist in the future.

According to a report from Mrs. Henry B. Brackin, Nashville, Tennessee, William Akers and William Blackburn owned adjoining land on the north branch of Willis River in Buckingham County, Va., as shown by a survey of Oct. 8, 1751. Taxpayers lists indicate that he lived in Buckingham County, Va. (See APPENDIX).

Mrs. Brackin has furnished us with copies of two land deeds and a will. One deed shows that on January 30, 1788, William Akers bought from William Rentfro and wife, Cloe, for "the sum of two hundred pounds current money of Virginia" — "one certain tract or parcel of land situated, lying and being in the County of Franklin on both sides of the north fork of Blackwater containing one hundred and ninety-nine acres be the same more or less." The other deed is for 220 acres of land which William Akers sold to his son, Blackburn Akers, on July 4, 1813, for one thousand dollars. This 220 acres of land was located where Lazy Run flows into Blackwater River.

Some historians have thought that William Akers of Franklin County, Va., was the son of William Akers of Campbell County, Va. But this is disproved by a copy of the will of William Akers of Campbell County, Va., dated March 17, 1810, which reads in part as follows: "My son William Akers being dead and he having during his life received his full proportion of my estate I think it fit to leave to each of the children of said William the sum of One Dollar only." William Akers of Franklin County was still living in the U. S. Census of 1830.

A. E. Akers in his book, THE AKERS FAMILY OF FRANKLIN COUNTY, VIRGINIA, says of William Akers, "He served in the Revolutionary War—a Sergt. in Captain Andrew Russell's Company of the Fifth Regiment, Virginia Continental Line. Commanded by Colonel Charles Scott—Supplementary List of Revolutionary Soldiers page 13 by the Virginia State Library, Richmond (5 V.R.) W D. 114, 1."

"He settled in that part of Bedford which in 1786 became Franklin County, Va., where on February 1, 1780 he patented 400 acres on Lazy Run of Blackwater.

"The records show that he bought and sold land making many transactions. The Franklin County, Va., land tax records found in the Archives of the VSL show that he was a moderately extensive land holder, owning several tracts totaling at the peak more than 2600 acres.

"In 1813, thirty-three years after he patented the 400 acres, he listed more than 1400 acres. This list continued until 1826 when he listed 1053 acres. The same land by description and acreage was listed to him until 1833, while in 1834 it was listed to William Akers, decd.

"The records further show that he was a member of the Pigg River Primitive Baptist Church which was organized in 1773. The minutes of this church from 1796 to 1953 are found in the hands of his great, great grandson, S. Grover Akers, asst. clerk, Route 4, Rocky Mount, Va. On examination of Volume one, 1796-1896, we find that in 1800, 1803, and 1804 he was appointed a delegate to the Association.

"'The church meeting held on the fourth Saturday in October 1825 ordered that John Jones and David Young go and labor with Brother William Akers for acting out of line of the Gospel in warranting Brother Woodson, member of Blackwater Church, and cite him to the church to give account for such conduct.

"'At the November 1825 meeting, Brother William Akers came forward to the church and acknowledged himself in error by warranting Brother Woodson, member of the Blackwater church, contrary to the direction of the Gospel and consented the matter in controversy be laid before the church of Pigg River and their verdict, by consent of Brother Woodson, should be a final settlement of the case.

"'At a church meeting held on the fourth Saturday in July 1827, Brethren James Welsh and John Jones were directed to cite Brother William Akers to the September meeting to answer to a complaint for going to hear excommunicated Baptist and inviting them to his home to preach. At the September meeting Brother William Akers attended and gave the church satisfaction.'

"We believe that he built and lived in a large two-story house which set on a hill about one hundred yards from Lazy Run on the north bank of the stream about one-half mile west from the point where Lazy Run flows into Blackwater River"

He was Road Supervisor for Blackwater District in 1789 and in 1799.

In his book, An Old Virginia Court, Marshall Wingfield gives the following information on William Akers' participation in the courts of Franklin County, Va.

"Mar. 1786, A deed from Wm. Akers to Jacob Wemmer. Ack. and O. R.

"May 1787. William Akers, juror in case of Hook vs. Wood. William Akers is allowed 10 days attendance for Wm. Miller vs. Wm. Kelly.

"August court 1787. Willis vs. Miller. On a Replevy Miller vs Willis (Action) Referred to Daniel Spangler, Wm. Akers, Robert Jones and Moses Rentfro and their award to be the Judgment of this Court.

"Feb. court 1788. Callaway & Co. vs Blain & Rentfro,

William Akers, a garnishee sworn sayeth he owes the Defendant the amount of the Plaintiff's claim. Thomas Doggitt vs Wm. Rentfro Atta. on hearing Judg. for 5 pounds, 4 shillings and William Akers, a garnishee being sworn, saith he owes the Def. a Sufficiency to satisfy the Ptf. Demand. & O. C. & Costs. William Akers is allowed 8 days attendance as a witness for Commonwealth vs. Toney. William Akers as Juror in these cases: Stokes vs Goggins; Black vs Swanson; and John Hale vs John Craighead. William Akers is allowed 9 days attendance as a witness for Ste. Wood vs Hook.

"July Court 1788. Handcock vs William Rentfro, William Akers a garnishee being sworn saith he hath Sufficient in his hands to satisfy the Plfs. Demands for 35/6 payable the 25th day of Dec. 1787 & Order of condemnation & Judgt. for the same & costs.

"William Akers is allowed 2 days pay, August Court 1788; 3 days November Court 1788; and 2 days March Court 1789 for attendance as a witness for Commonwealth vs Toney.

"Sept. Court 1786. Judgment granted Francis Thorp vs Jacob Blackburn & Jacob Wemmer."

From Virginia Magazine of History and Biography, Vol. I, pages 94-95 we quote the following: "An old manuscript volume of about 100 folio pages, bound in parchment, is in the possession of Miss Lucy Scranton of Madison, Conn., formerly the parish of East Guilford. Its original owner was the Rev. Archibald Cummings, first commissary of the Bishop of London for Pennsylvania. It contains his commission from Bishop Gibson (in Latin), dated Dec. 31, 1728, with other ecclesiastical records, the latest bearing date October 7, 1730. Portions of three leaves only were used in this way. Many years afterwards the volume, having somehow found its way to Norfolk, served for a short time as the orderly-book of a company in the Fifth Virginia regiment at the beginning of the Revolutionary War. It seems to have moved northward with the regiment, perhaps crossing the Delaware with Washington, and at all events reaching New Jersey. Two leaves (apart from some scribbling on the first page) contain all that relates to this portion of its history.

An entry on the second page, dated Newark, March 8, 1777, states that on that day the volume was taken, as his own property, by Sergeant Abraham Scranton, of East Guilford, Connecticut.

The portion of the contents which is of most interest to Virginians is found on the ninth, tenth and eleventh pages. At the top of the ninth page is the word 'Chester,' with date to be given below. Then comes the following, in four lines of large, plain script, inclosed in rude scroll work: 'Minor Smith His Orderly Book October the 26, 1776.' Outside the scroll-work, on the left, in three lines, we have a series of capital letters: 'No. A RL MS WxS.' On the right in four lines: 'Andrew Russell Capt. in the fifth Virginia Regiment From Loudoun County Virginia.' The rest of this page, with part of the tenth, is filled with a list of names, presumably those of non-commissioned officers and privates, and perhaps musicians." The list contains:- William Acker (2nd name); Thomas Brown (32nd name); Wm. Blackburn (last & 55th name).

Children:

22. Pattie, m., Apr. 27, 1790, Henry Reel. Sur. William Akers.

John Akers, b. Nov. 8, 1771, d. Sept. 3, 1849, son of William and Polly (Blackburn) Akers of Franklin County, Va., m., Aug. 8, 1793 in Franklin County, Va., Sarah Brown, d. July 23, 1861 in Gwinnett County, Ga. He settled in Patrick County, Va., and land records show that he owned land there in 1805. In 1833 he moved to Gwinnett County, Ga., and purchased land near Stone Mountain. In 1840 he owned 8 slaves.

His great-great-granddaughter, Mrs. Henry B. Brackin, 401 Hillwood Dr., Nashville, Tennessee, has furnished a copy of part of the county records of the settlement of his estate by the executors. His son, William Akers, and his son-in-law, Tarleton Carter, were appointed executors in 1856. Upon the death of his son, William, in 1858 his son, Samuel Akers, was appointed in his stead. Only the parts which seem to be of historical value are given here. In these records are found dates, expenses, and arrangements relevant to the sickness, death and burial of his widow, Sarah Akers.

42nd Mississippi Regiment (Col. H. R. Miller), Joseph R. Davis' Brigade, Heth's Division, A. P. Hill's Corps in the Confederate States Army of Northern Virginia. He was at home on furlough in winter of 1862 and returned to his command and was missing after Battle of Gettysburg, Pa., July 3, 1863.

His widow lived in Mississippi until about 1880, when she and her children went to Brookland, Craighead County, Ark.

Children:

84. Mary Vinecy, b. Apr. 29, 1861.
85. Nathaniel Caswell, b. Aug. 9, 1863.

45. JACKSON MONROE AKERS

Jackson Monroe Akers, b. July 4, 1837, d. Aug. 4, 1934, son of Nathaniel and Vinecy (Polk) Akers, m. Martha A. Gresham, b. Aug. 24, 1835, d. Oct. 20, 1906, dau. of George and Margaret (Files) Gresham. The date of their marriage was Jan. 2, 1870.

He enlisted in the Confederate Army in Arkansas in 1861, but due to illness he was unable to leave with his company. Later he went to Tishomingo County, Miss., to recover from the malaria, which was very prevalent in the river bottoms of Arkansas. On May 14, 1862 he and his brother, Columbus, enlisted in the Confederate service. They were assigned to Company E, 42nd Mississippi Regiment, Joseph R. Davis' Brigade, Heth's Division, A. P. Hill's Third Corps, Army of North Virginia under the command of General Robert E. Lee.

In the Battle of Gettysburg, Pa., on July 3, 1863 he was wounded in the arm, captured and sent to prison on David's Island, Long Island Sound, New York. In Sept. 1863 he was paroled and sent to Petersburg, Va. He went from there to Atlanta, Ga., and stayed with his kinsfolk for a few months. In Feb. 1864 he was exchanged and then he went back to General Lee's army and stayed until the end of the war.

Returning from the war he taught school for two years in Tishomingo County, Mississippi, and then went to Craighead County, Ark. After the death of his father, he carried his stepmother and her children to Tishomingo County, Miss. In 1870 he bought a farm of 160 acres of land fifteen miles east of Booneville, Miss., where he lived as a farmer and school teacher. He, his wife and all his children are buried in Mackeys Creek Church Cemetery. He was a member of New Hope Primitive Baptist Church.

Children:

86. George Nathaniel, b. June 9, 1871, d. Mar. 24, 1899, began teaching school quite young and continued until his death. He was attending Iuka Normal Institute, Iuka, Miss., at the time of his death. Never married.
87. Vinecy M., b. June 9, 1871, d. Nov. 30, 1903. Teacher. n. m.
88. William Pinkney, b. Sept. 3, 1873, d. Dec. 10, 1918.
89. Annie Frances, b. Jan. 15, 1877, d. Feb. 14, 1910, m. Mose Harmon Smith, son of Wm. V. Smith.
90. Augustus Franklin, b. Oct. 4, 1880, d. Jan. 3, 1916. n. m. Lived with his father until his death.

Jackson Monroe Akers retired about 1900 and spent much of his time in writing on various subjects. He wrote for local newspapers as well as for the paper of the Primitive Baptist Church. Because of his articles in the church paper he was sometimes mistaken for a minister. He delighted in writing poetry for his friends. Also, he was ever ready with advice for the betterment of human relations. He wrote because he enjoyed it and hoped that his writings might please and benefit someone. He was very considerate, thoughtful, and tolerant of people. We give here some of his compositions.

G O D

From the depths of mysteries hidden
Sprang forth the God of Heaven.
From the deep recess of mystic realm
He came in majesty sublime

When the stars, moon, or sun were not,
Nor upon space a single dot,
Not a river, sea, or fountain,
And not a hill, dale, or mountain.

Space immense was His counsel-hall,
Where He devised creation's roll
And planned the globes, the lights, and all
In His mighty counsel-hall.

He set their bounds and fixed their place
In the amplitude of space;
He designed the rivers, seas, and hill
In accordance with His will.

Animals of the various kind
He portrayed in His mind;
And devised the heavens to suit His will
With all the hosts the heavens to fill.

And when all His plans had been told
And written in His mental scroll,
Nothing to do then remain
But that creation should begin.

For each symbol had been drawn
And what should be was clearly known;
Then all things waited His command,
Which brought forth heaven's light and land.

Heaven spread out with hosts sublime;
Earth appeared with all its kind;
The sun, moon, and stars all went
And took their place in the firmament.

And all creation doth onward roll
According to the mighty scroll;
And all things work to the plummet line,
Even down to the end of time.

T I M E

Time is the standard line of measure
From beggar's want to costly treasure.
It measures all events of earth;
By its standard they all go forth.

Time is firm and will not lengthen.
It is stern and will not shorten
To fit the wants or plans of men;
But to its standard all must bend.

Time moves with even headway
Measuring night and bringing day;
Measuring Winter; then Spring is due;
Summer and Autumn are measured, too.

Ages pass and years onward roll,
All written in Time's unerring scroll.
In succession centuries go,
But each the measure of time doth show.

The mighty howling, great cyclone
Rolls along the tape-line of Time.
By Time's permit the clouds doth form
And the line is laid upon the storm.

The line is drawn across creation
Marking off each generation;
So creation will onward roll
Till the mighty measuring scroll

Has no more tape to unfold,
And creation has all been told.
Then Time shall be no more
And we shall be on another shore.

THIS WORLD

A great rolling stage this world be,
Made of mineral, land, and sea.
Valleys deep and lofty mountains,
Rushing seas and gushing fountains,

With frozen snow-capped hills
And rosy, fragrant, blooming dales,
Waterfalls with roar and din,
And placid lakes calmly serene;

With broad prairie, desert land,
And wooded hills majestic grand,
Cavern, cascade, and lofty peak
And great extremes of cold and heat.

Destructive cyclone, storm, and hail,
Lightning's flash and thunder's peal
Doth sweep the land and roll the sea
And whirl the air and rend the tree.

Winter hath dark, billowy cloud;
Spring, the earth in green doth shroud;
Summer hath its sultry heat,
And Autumn brings the crimson leaf.

BEAUTIES OF LIFE

Strong and vigorous health,
The delusive dream of wealth,
And hope of brilliant future
Is youth's beautiful picture.

Self-esteem and generous pride
Is a hobby for youth to ride.
It cheers the brain and swells the heart
And bouyant vigor doth impart.

Singing birds and humming bees,
Green foliage on the trees,
Floating cloud and gentle zephyr—
All animate life and pleasures.

Sunshine, warm and gentle,
The forest with its green mantle,
And cool shadows on the lawn,
And fragrant odor of the morn

Are life's beautiful treasure
And storehouse of pleasure
And the heart's light and bouyant sail
In life's gentle flowery dale.

Showy clothes and vehicles fine
And prancing steeds under the line
Set the pride of life aglow
In the grand and gaudy show.

Chitchat in ideal way
Feed the fancy of the gay
Flitting along the bright side
Of life's waving gentle tide.

As the thoughtless butterfly
Drifts along the bloomy way
Sipping the sweetest flowers
Along the gentle bowers,

So life's most beautiful boon
Floats in the ideal realm
At the shrine of beauties gay,
Looked for in the coming day.

FOOTPRINTS

The footprints made by man are like pebbles thrown into the sea. They produce a ripple at first, but in a moment the ripple falls into that steady wave which affects every human being with whom its influence comes in contact.

Footprints not only affect those who see and feel them at present, but they stamp their impressions upon all future generations. How many pass through life without even a consciousness of where they are or what they are doing! They gaze on whatever lies directly before them. Look, listen, and learn wherever you go or tarry; something is always transpiring to reward your attention. Let your eyes and ears always be open and you will often observe, in the slightest incident, material of advantage and means of personal improvement.

In nothing is childhood more strongly distinguished from manhood than in this: the child has no purpose or plan of life; no will by which his energies are directed. He lives in a great measure to enjoy the passing scenes and to find his happiness in those agreeable things which from hour to hour come to him by chance.

If a child's life is governed by a plan or purpose, it is the plan of another and not his own. He follows the footprints of those who come before him. The footprints of predecessors are the keys which unlock the avenues leading into the broad fields of religious thought, moral rectitude, and intellectual research.

Each succeeding generation penetrates farther and farther into the unexplored regions of knowledge. Man comes into the world with an untutored mind, susceptible of receiving impressions, with a tendency to conform to surrounding circumstances and influences. He is placed, as it were, behind a transparent screen, through which he looks for a rule of thought and action. Every precept or example which passes before the screen leaves its impression upon the mind, which—in a measure—becomes the thoughts and actions of the man in afteryears; the more vivid the impression, the more lasting the influence.

All men are unconsciously making footprints to be, more or less, emulated by those with whom they associate. In the great mixing and mingling of social intercourse, all these conflicting footprints are brought to bear upon each and every person. Knowing these things we should examine ourselves to see what kind and whose footprints we are following. When we have arrived at a conclusion as to what we are following, we shall be able to determine the kind of influence we are making, for like begets like.

So then, if we follow evil persuasions, we impart evil to those who are influenced by our course of conduct. It is what man was that lives and acts after him. The sphere in which he acts may have been small, or it may have been great. It may have been his fireside, a village, or a kingdom; but yet he acts, and that forever, for a man cannot be a blank in this world. He may be a blot, radiating his dark influence outward to the circumference of society, or he may be a blessing, sowing good wherever he goes.

The body rests in the grave, but the footprints remain here and distribute themselves as a benediction or a curse among the families of mankind. The sun sets beyond the western hills, but the rays of light it leaves behind guides the pilgrim to his distant home. The babe that perished on the bosom of its mother, like a flower that bowed its head and dropped amid the death frosts of time—that babe—not only in its image but in its influence, still lives and speaks in the chambers of that mother's heart.

The friend with whom we took sweet counsel is removed visibly from the outward eye, but the lessons that he taught, the grand sentiments he uttered, and the holy deeds of generosity by which he was characterized—all linger with us, and the moral lineaments and likeness of the man still lives; and being dead, he yet speaketh eloquently to us.

Mohammed's footprints still exert power and influence in the East. Martin Luther's footprints are marked on every church in Christendom. Shakespeare, Byron, and Milton live in their influence for good or for evil. But the most beautiful, grand, and ennobling footprints ever made manifest to man are those of the great Messiah, Jesus Christ, who for the elevation of man left the golden walks of Heaven and sojourned on earth, that soul-renewing knowledge might be diffused among men. These sublime rules and patterns of moral suasion influence every nation, kindred, tongue, and people wherever profusely expounded. There is not a nation that observes these noble precepts and examples which is not in a fair state of civilization, while those who disregard them grope in darkness.

Then how important that we regulate our plan of conduct in conformity with these exalted footprints of the heavenly messenger. Let us not bend before the sneers of the arrogant and sacrilegious but move steadily onward with independence of thought and action, ever following the footprints of right. Then, when we have quit the walks of life, our footprints may glow with genial influence, which may direct the wayward feet of those who have been swept from the high plane of moral rectitude by the boisterous waves of depravity.

AN ARTICLE

(To Editor, The Eagle)

Horrid contemplation! Hideous muse! Terrible consideration! Depressing thought! Deep sorrow hung in doleful drapery and crushing coils around me, pity and condolence rolled in melancholy waves before my vision, and sympathy and commiseration pervaded my soul when I read the account in the columns of The Eagle of that awe-inspiring, heart-rending, and lamentable event which transpired near Vinemont, Alabama, when the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Riley Eason wandered off and was all alone and lost in the woods for twelve days. O, who can trace this innocent, unprotected, and helpless little child through twelve long, lonely days and dark nights, wandering aimlessly about in forlorn wretchedness without shuddering with violent emotions of compassion and mercy?

O, think for a moment on her woebegone, solitary, and frightful condition when it dawned on her confiding mind that she could not find her playmates and that she was alone and lost in the woods, and the wild scenery began to present a weird and ghostly appearance in the twilight. But, O, yet when darkness began to spread its lurid mantle over the scene, the blackness of darkness closed in around her, and the piercing and bewailing calls for mama and papa broke forth in distressing strains and floated away on the stillness of the night with no answer but the mocking echo from the ghost-like trees—it was then that horror struck and almost stilled her trembling heart. And when she, crouching down among the shrubbery and giving vent to the fitful and forlorn cry of fright and helplessness, had cried bitter distress to the full cup, the cries grew weaker and weaker, dying away into sobs and sighs until sweet and blessed sleep intervened and she glided gently into the land of oblivion to enjoy the delusive dreams of the sweet association of mama and papa, and brothers and sisters.

The chilling rain, violent electrical display, and tempestuous disturbances that prevailed almost daily added horrible terrors, agonizing fright, and dreadful discomfort to the miserable and languishing little sufferer. Lightnings flashed, thunders rolled, and the roaring tempest howled and raged around her with torrents of pitiless beating upon her defenseless head and thinly-clad body as she nestled among the bushes, shivering with cold and quivering with fear, looking wistfully and wildly about for a helping hand. But, alas, she looked in vain for there was none to offer a friendly hand. And in her forlorn wretchedness and torturing despair, she was an easy prey for the ravenous insects that annoyed, terrified, and sucked away her lifeblood. And with hunger gnawing at her vitals, her tender flesh lacerated, torn, and bleeding by thorns and thistles, her little limbs aching with fatigue and benumbed by chilling, and her whole body irritated and smarting with the poisonous bite and stings of voracious insects, she became dazed, bewildered, and perplexed and walked and stood about, as it were, in the torturing dungeon of misery and woe in the very jaws, throes, and horrible pit of indescribable wretchedness. In this most pitiable, miserable, and languishing condition, the frail little form was fast yielding to the destructive influence of hunger, emaciation, and languishment and was sinking down under the crushing burden of bodily pain, grief, and exposure when picked up by her grief-stricken father. And while it is hoping against hope, yet I do hope to learn that she has survived, overcome, and recovered from the awful experience through which she has passed. June 24, 1909.

A LETTER

(Note: This was the last piece written by Jackson Monroe Akers. It was written about three weeks before his death.)

Booneville, Mississippi
July 9, 1934

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Akers
Hattiesburg, Mississippi

My dear grandchildren,

Ninety-seven anniversaries
Since my days of nursery
Have wafted along the line
Of true momentum of time,

And took just one day to wait
For my friends to celebrate,
Which they did with free good will
But didn't try grand show to fill
The old way drifted along
With the mighty rushing throng
Toward looked-for consumation
Of unknown duration.

I was delighted with that nice token of friendship and would gladly write you a letter a yard long, but I can't see anything about it. I hope your way may be compassed about with friendly hands to aid you in getting by hard places in going up the ladder of literary fame and aid in the promotion to profitable and prominent positions. I hope that in the meantime you may, together with many friends, sup from the golden bowl at the fountain of mundane glory and drink from the silvered pitcher at the cistern of social joy.

It is stranger than fiction that you can turn your mind away from attractive books and gay festivities to consider the welfare of a superannuated physical wreck sitting in the isolation of these pine hills. Though I do appreciate your consideration and invoke the blessing of the Most High upon your head.

Your devoted grandfather,
J. M. Akers

OLDEST CITIZEN PASSES AWAY

In the death of Jackson M. Akers last Saturday, Prentiss County lost its oldest citizen. He had been sick only a few days with pneumonia. He had been in declining health for several years and had been able to get about but little.

Mr. Akers was born in Georgia on July 4th, 1837, and was 97 years and 1 month old and was brought to Old Tishomingo County by his parents in the early forties. He grew to manhood, went to Arkansas for a short time and came back home and joined the Confederate Army and saw hard service in the campaigns in Virginia. He fought in the great Battle of Gettysburg, where he was wounded in the shoulder. (Narrator's correction: It was his arm.) After partially recovering from the effects of the wound, he was given guard duty and remained with his command until the surrender. He came home and went to Arkansas again, where he remained a short while. In 1869 he was married to Miss Martha A. Gresham, a sister of the late James F. Gresham, and settled south of Burtons where he continued to live the rest of his life. His wife passed away many years ago and from then he lived with his children, until they all passed on. Since the death of his last son in 1918, he made his home with his grandchildren and was tenderly cared for.

He was an outstanding citizen, who always stood for the higher and better things of life. He was a splendid writer and wrote many articles for the local papers. For many years he taught in the public schools of the county. After he had passed his three score and ten, he united with the Primitive Baptist Church and was baptized by Elder E. W. Shackelford. He was a brave soldier; he was a brave citizen.

The funeral services were held at McKeys Creek Church Sunday afternoon and a large crowd came to pay their respects to one they had loved so long. Elder E. W. Shackelford had charge of the services and paid a high tribute to the deceased; he told of how he had been associated with him; how that he had gone to school to him; how that he had been his pastor and had administered the ordinance of baptism to him.

Elder J. E. Shackelford spoke of his lifelong friendship with Mr. Akers. How that he first saw him 75 years or more ago as he worked on the elder Shackelford's farm; how that he had gone to the Civil War; how that he had gone to school to him after the war and had known and loved him all these years.

A special feature of the service was a written request from the deceased that these services be regarded as a joint memorial to the deceased wife and their five children, as well as himself. To the faithful daughter-in-law and grandchildren much sympathy has been extended in the going of their loved one.

HEIGHTS ACADEMY CLOSED FOR FIVE YEARS, BUT 'PROF'S' WIDOW KEEPS UP WITH BOYS

By W. G. Barner

Journal Roving Reporter

BLUE MOUNTAIN.—It was the day before Easter, a little more than seven years ago, that the old bell in the Heights rang for the last time.

The Heights—Mississippi Heights Academy—had been closed nearly five years. It had at one time been one of the South's leading private schools. In its hey-day it had attracted boys from all parts of the nation and from foreign countries.

And now the man who had helped establish the school and who had been its sole superintendent and chief guiding light was dead. Professor J. E. Brown was buried that day before Easter in 1947.

Every morning for the 38 years of Mississippi Heights, Professor Brown personally had rung the tower bell for classes. And when he died it rang for the last time.

As the funeral procession of the veteran schoolmaster moved slowly away from his home the old Heights bell tolled a final goodbye; its ring followed the procession all the way down the hill. Then the bellrope was tied, never to be pulled again.

Professor Brown's widow still lives in the big white house next to the Heights; she maintains a close contact with the boys who once attended school here and with the alumni association they have since formed.

Vines cover many of the walls and creep in where window panes are missing; many of the doors sag and a portion of the auditorium ceiling has broken loose at the back.

Nevertheless, the better days of the Heights and the boys who were in school are still bright in Mrs. Brown's memory. "The boys" or "our boys" she remembers them.

Heights boys marched to church every Sunday and dated the Blue Mountain College girls on Monday and Saturday nights. The Browns often entertained for them, and the school had the first radio in Blue Mountain.

The boys took part in a well-rounded athletic program that included the major sports and boxing, wrestling, tennis, and track.

They were the town's only fire department and fought local fires with their well-organized bucket brigades.

They liked her husband, Mrs. Brown recalls, and they looked up to him, for he was the type who appealed to boys.

He could be as stern as the situation required, but on the other hand he could "be one of the boys." He might give them a stern lecture just as easily as he might get down on his knees with them for a game of marbles. He owned the same marble 63 years.

They joked with the professor, kidded him, and always called him "prof." His bright brown eyes and his white hair were his most notable characteristics, and though he was short of stature the boys remember that he was always master of the situation.

"He believed in individual attention for his boys," Mrs. Brown remembers, "and he attempted to bring out the best in them. His motto—'What a boy needs most in life is someone to make him do his best'—was printed in every Heights catalog."

The Heights boys lived in private homes with at least one instructor assigned to each home. Almost all the Brown family taught classes—the professor, Mrs. Brown, and their daughters who are now Mrs. Natalie B. Watson and Mrs. H. R. Malott.

Mississippi Heights was opened with about 70 students on Sept. 8, 1904. It was chartered by Blue Mountain businessmen as a private institution.

The school took students of grades six through 12 and for two years of college. Its fame in handling boys became nationally known, and at its peak in the 1930's its enrollment was past the 200 mark.

Competition steadily increased for the Heights. The public high schools increased in number from 80 to 800. When Professor Brown suffered a stroke in 1942 it was decided to discontinue the school after the summer session.

The professor's daughter, Mrs. Watson, remembers the last session. "We held a final assembly, tolled the bell once, and closed the school."

Most of the items of historical interest went to the state Capitol building museum, but Mrs. Brown herself still keeps many of the old records. Pictures of her students still hold prominent spots in her home, and a newly-tinted picture of "Prof" stands on a hall table.

He moved from Florence, Lauderdale County, Ala., to Tishomingo County, Miss., about 1838 and settled on Mackeys Creek where the present Highway No. 4 crosses the creek. This spot was an ideal location for a dam to furnish water power. The banks of the stream are high, sheer cliffs of sandstone. He started quite an industrial center here.

From History of Mississippi by Lowry and McCardle we give the following:

"This place was known in an early day as Gresham's Mills. Bay Springs was the name of Robert Lowry's residence, four miles from the mills.

The first post-office in that vicinity was at his store, and called Bay Springs Post-office. When he changed his residence to near Old Carrollville, the post-office was moved to Gresham's Mills, without change of name, and the place was thereafter called Bay Springs." Page 587.

" . . . Gresham, who was the father of the late Major James Gresham. The elder Gresham was the owner of the mills at the head of Mackey's Creek more than half a century ago; after his death the site was purchased by Mr. Nelson upon which a cotton factory was established and in successful operation when burned a few years ago." This book was copyrighted in 1891.

George and Margaret Gresham are buried in Old Mackeys Creek Church Cemetery on a hill north of the Bay Springs Mill site.

June 13, 1876. m. 3rd. Dec. 1879, Eliza Moore Carter, b. Sept. 9, 1841, d. Dec. 4, 1922. He was the son of George and Margaret (Files) Gresham. He and his father organized and operated Gresham's Mills on Mackeys Creek in Tishomingo County, Miss.

In May 1861 he organized a company of men known as the "Cape Horn Grays" and became its captain. This company was mustered into the Confederate States Army at Iuka, Miss., in Aug. 1861 and was known as Co. H, 26th. Mississippi Infantry Regiment. Arthur Reynolds was colonel of the regiment. After Captain Gresham became the regimental quartermaster, W. A. H. Shackelford became captain of the company.

The following is taken from Corinth (Miss.) Herald, Historical Edition, dated December 15, 1903, "History of Old Tishomingo County.

J. F. GRESHAM

Mr. James Files Gresham was a native of Alabama, having been born in the northern portion of that state in 1820 and at the age of eighteen moved to old Tishomingo County, Mississippi. In the early 40's Mr. Gresham and his father, Mr. George Gresham, erected a saw and grist mill at Bay Springs, on Mackey's Creek, some twenty-six miles south of the present town of Iuka. This mill being the only one in that portion of the county equipped for the manufacture of flour, the pioneers hauled their wheat there for quite a distance; while the saw mill supplied the neighborhood with lumber, and also sawed a large portion of the material used in the construction of the large factory and other buildings erected later. In 1850 Mr. Gresham organized the Bay Springs Union Factory Company, there being associated with him Messrs. John Briggs and John Robertson. The company was incorporated in February, 1852. When first organized, the company erected a factory for the manufacture of cotton yarns, commencing with 360 spindles and increasing the number to 744, the original saw and grist mill being torn down to provide a suitable location for the new structure.

After incorporation the company added a set of wool cards and a saw mill. A little below the factory were erected a grist mill, with two sets of stones, and a cotton gin; also a blacksmith shop, general store and postoffice. A dam 11 feet high across Mackey's Creek, and a breast wheel twelve feet in diameter furnished an abundance of power for the large amount of machinery. This immense business was under the immediate management of Mr. Gresham and the great success achieved by the company was owing to his superior business capacity and untiring efforts. Shortly before the beginning of the war, Mr. Gresham disposed of his interest in the Bay Springs property, and when the first call for troops was made, organized a company known as the Cape Horn Grays, of which he was elected captain. The company was mustered into the 26th Mississippi Regiment of Infantry and Mr. Gresham was elected regimental quartermaster. He was on sick leave when the regiment surrendered at Fort Donelson; was at the battle of Baker's Creek, and in the siege of Vicksburg, being paroled when the city was surrendered. After the war Mr. Gresham served one term as sheriff of Tishomingo County, and during the remainder of his life was engaged in merchandising in Booneville, and in the saw mill business near that place. Mr. Gresham was the pioneer manufacturer of North Mississippi, an honest and worthy citizen, and hundreds of the men of Alcorn, Prentiss and Tishomingo counties today hold his memory in the highest respect."

THE SMITH FAMILY

In 1840 three brothers and their sister left Pike County, Georgia and settled in Tishomingo County (now Prentiss), Mississippi about 12 miles east of Booneville near New Hope Baptist Church, which is on Highway No. 30. We know nothing about the parents of these brothers and their sister, only their names and what they did after going to Tishomingo County. They were Henry, Vinson, and Joseph Smith, and their sister, Sarah.

Vinson Smith married and reared a large family. There have been many descendants from this branch of the family. Some who have been very prominent in the professional world. Joseph Smith died unmarried. Erwin Searcy married Sarah Smith and they had one boy, William (called Bill). Bill Searcy was a Confederate soldier in Company E, 42nd. Mississippi Regiment, Joe Davis's Brigade, Heth's Division, A. P. Hill's Corps, Army of Northern Virginia. He was wounded July 3, 1863, in Battle of Gettysburg. After the war he returned to Mississippi and reared a family. He has many descendants there now.

This compilation is chiefly for the purpose of recording the descendants of Henry Smith. However, we will jot down two notes which may have some connection with the family, and they may be of interest to someone who may wish to pursue the matter further.

From Landmarks, Memorials and Legends, by Knight, we find that H. G. Johnson was one of the original settlers of Pike County, Georgia. And also, Isaac Smith, a minister of the gospel and a soldier in the first war for independence, was an early settler in Monroe County, Ga. (Pike County was formed from Monroe in 1822).

1. HENRY SMITH

William Vinson Smith, b. Apr. 16, 1840, d. Sept. 1923, son of Henry and Elizabeth Katherine (Johnson) Smith. At the outbreak of the Civil War he did not agree with the policies of the slaveholders, so he went to Illinois and took no part in the conflict other than as a worker that he might make a livelihood. He worked part, if not all, of the four years in a saddle factory. After the war he returned home and became a farmer of some note. A few years before his death, he gave each of his children by his last wife a farm, ranging in size from about 85 to 125 acres, according to value.

About 1916 he fought a battle in the courts to prevent the digging of canals in the Little Brown's Creek Bottom. Finally, he compromised on one canal and paid a lump sum, rather than have a bond issue paid by taxation. He was a member of New Hope Primitive Baptist Church, Highway 30, east of Booneville, Miss.

THE RIDDLE FAMILY

1. CHARLES RIDDLE

From records in an old family Bible, we find that Charles Riddle, who went from Carolina to McNairy County, Tennessee and then to Tishomingo County, Mississippi, was the son of Thomas Riddle. The Census of 1790 shows six families of Riddles in Chatham County, North Carolina as follows: Cato Riddle, 1 male over 16, 2 males under 16, and 3 females; Jalus Riddle, 1-1-3; John Riddle, 1-2-4, others 3; Richard Riddle, 1-2-3; Thomas Riddle, 1-2-6, 1 slave; William Riddle, 1-2-3, 3 slaves. We believe this Thomas Riddle to be the antecedent of the Riddle family of Tishomingo County, Miss.

William Riddle was a commissioner of the town of Pittsboro (Pittsborough at first), Chatham County, North Carolina, January 6, 1787. John Riddle was a private in N. C. militia and was a pensioner, 84 years old, March 4, 1831. James Riddle was a private in Dixon's Company, 10th. N. C. Reg't., Col. Abraham Shepard. His service was from May 15, 1781 to May 21, 1782.

Charles Riddle, b. July 10, 1782, son of Thomas Riddle, m. Milbrey Harmon, b. Jan. 8, 1785, dau. of Hezekiah Harmon. He settled on what is now called Riddle Creek near Mackey's Creek Church. This is 15 miles east of Booneville, Miss., and 5 miles west of Tishomingo, Miss. He, with his sons' and daughter's families, went there in the spring of 1835.

We can not connect the following with Milbrey Harmon, but we give it as a possible family connection. Henry Harmon was allowed ten pounds for a scalp which he had taken in N. C. Henry Harmon was on Committee of Safety for Rowan County, N. C., Sept. 23, 1774. North Carolina Pensioners (reported 1835) included John Harmon. Zachariah Harmon was made one of trustees for designing, building, and carrying on the town of Pittsborough, Chatham County, N. C. by Act of Dec. 29, 1785.

Children of Charles and Milbrey (Harmon) Riddle:
